ACCS launches new website: www.accs.cc

MONTGOMERY – Alabama Community College System Chancellor Bradley Byrne today announced the launch of the new ACCS website: www.accs.cc .

“This website is much more than an electronic brochure,” Byrne said. “It is the embodiment of our system-wide dedication to our three core missions of academics, adult education and workforce development. It is intended to celebrate our students’ successes by featuring their real-life stories. It models transparency to the public, by posting our system data, announcements, contact information and reports for all to see.”

“Thousands of hours of work have gone into making this site as user-friendly as possible, but we know it will always be a work in progress,” Byrne continued. “We invite all employees, the news media and the public to review the site and let us know what we can do to enhance the site by sending your suggestions to dpecom@dpe.edu .”

Some key new features of the site include:

- College programs: Search for your interest by college, program or career cluster
- <http://www.accs.cc/schoolprograms.aspx>
- Compare colleges and programs in a printable chart
<http://www.accs.cc/ProgramMatrix.aspx>
- Searchable contact list to help you connect with us
<http://www.accs.cc/contactsearch.aspx>
- Success Stories: Real stories about real people in ACCS (click on academics, adult education or workforce development sections on the site’s front page)
- Notable Alumni: Familiar faces and inspirational career paths
<http://www.accs.cc/notablealumni.aspx>
- Special section on RFPs and contracts to assist those interested in doing business with the Department of Postsecondary Education
<http://www.accs.cc/rfp.aspx>
- Up-to-date news feeds and announcements
- More online applications and fill able forms
- Handy information and references, including one that will translate a page or the entire site into other languages
- Coming soon: A new online database to allow for real-time access to ACCS facts, figures and finances education works.
